WELCOME FROM THE SCIENTIFIC COMMITTEE

What does value look like in pharmacy — and how do we prove it?

Welcome to the 2nd Red Sea Pharmacy Symposium.

When we built this year's programme, we started from that one question. Over the next two days you will hear it answered from several directions: artificial intelligence and digital health reshaping the daily workflow, patients and clinicians describing the outcomes that truly matter, stewardship moving from written policy to the bedside, and quality and safety leaders sharing what they have learned from the incidents no one wants to repeat.

Alongside the lectures, our residents will present challenging cases to expert panels, four hands-on workshops will give you tools to take back to your own practice, and our research and talent competitions will showcase the next generation of pharmacy professionals in the region.

I am grateful to our speakers, moderators and panellists for their time and expertise, to the members of the Scientific Committee for months of careful work, and to the Organizing Committee for bringing it all together.

I hope you leave with new ideas, new colleagues, and at least one change you will make in your practice on the first morning back.

WELCOME FROM THE ORGANIZING COMMITTEE

Welcome to Jeddah.

On behalf of the Organizing Committee, it is my pleasure to welcome you to the 2nd Red Sea Pharmacy Symposium.

An event of this size is the work of many hands. Behind every session in this booklet are colleagues who arranged travel, venues, registration, accreditation and a hundred smaller details, so that you could focus on learning and connecting. To every one of them, thank you.

We have designed these two days to be as comfortable and productive as possible. Our team will be at the registration desk throughout the symposium, so please approach any of us if there is anything you need.

We are glad to have you with us, and we look forward to welcoming you again at the next Red Sea Pharmacy Symposium.
